INITIAL COUNTRY REPORT OF TURKEY
ON THE OPTIONAL PROTOCOL
TO THE CONVENTION ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD
ON THE INVOLVEMENT OF CHILDREN IN ARMED CONFLICT
Article 1

Article 41/2 of the Constitution of the Republic of Turkey entrusts the State with the task of taking necessary measures for the protection of children. On the other hand, Article 90 of the Constitution reads as follows: “International agreements duly put into effect bear the force of law. No appeal to the Constitutional Court shall be made with regard to these agreements, on the grounds that they are unconstitutional (Additional sentence inserted: 7.5.2004 – Article 5170/7). In the case of a conflict between international agreements in the area of fundamental rights and freedoms duly put into effect and the domestic laws due to differences in provisions on the same matter, the provisions of international agreements shall prevail”.

According to Article 72 of the Constitution, “National service is the right and duty of every Turk. The manner in which this service shall be performed, or considered as performed, either in the Armed Forces or in public service shall be regulated by law”.

The principal laws regulating the military service are the “Law on Military Service” No: 1111 and the “Law for Reserve Officers and Reserve Military Servants” No: 1076.

The legislation of the Republic of Turkey on military service regulates the aforementioned national service as a compulsory service only for males as a rule. The military service commences for every male on the first day of the year he reaches the age of 20.

In the Turkish Armed Forces, there is no staff below the age of 18 who is under the obligation of military service. Therefore, it should be emphasized at the outset that no problem exists on the implementation of the Optional Protocol in question, as there is no provision in the military conscription system in Turkey allowing children to be called to arms apart from direct involvement of children in armed conflict.
Article 2

According to Article 2 of the Law No: 1111, the age of military service for every male starts on the first day of January of the year he reaches the age of 20, on the basis of the date of their birth in the register of births and ends on the first day of January of the year he reaches the age of 41. The deadline, if deemed necessary by the General Staff, can be extended up to 5 years or shortened upon the proposal of the Ministry of National Defense and the decision of the Council of Ministers. Therefore, under the Turkish legislation it is not possible for individuals under the age of 18 to be called to arms.

Article 5 of the “Regulation on the Initial Procedures of the First Call-up of Recruits of the Persons who are of Military Age” reads as follows: “The birth registration offices of provinces and public registration offices of districts send the names of the persons who will reach the military age that year, the names of their fathers and mothers, their dates and places of birth and other necessary information regarding their birth record, as indicated in the register of births, by writing them separately for each village and district and in two copies, and also provide the Directorate of the Draft Office in the region with one of the said copies not later than 15th of January.” Therefore, the initial recruitment procedures of the persons at military age is commenced by taking into account their ages, calculated according to their date of birth as indicated in their birth records enunciated by the Birth Registration Offices.

Article 4 of the Law No: 1111 provides that “the call-up period starts from the beginning of military service age and lasts until the attendance to the detachment. In the state of emergency and mobilization, those who are at the call-up age, but not of recruiting age pursuant to Article 8, as well as those who are 19 years-old may also be recruited upon the request of the Ministry of National Defense, the acceptance of the Council of Ministers and the approval of the President”. According to this, Turkish citizens to be conscripted in states of emergency and mobilization should consist of those who underwent medical examination, but not yet conscripted and who at least reached the age of 19.

Under Article 35 of the Law No: 1111, the procedures and examinations of those who are considered to be incapable of accomplishing their military service during their last inspection due to the reasons prescribed by the law, are postponed to the next year. Pursuant to the provision that reads “those who are not physically grown up enough for military service”, all military service procedures for those people are postponed for one year, and they are reassessed the following year after having undergone medical examination. This process is repeated for a period of five years, and after five years, those who have not physically grown-up enough for military service are exempted from military service.

According to Article 81 of the Law No:1111, changes made in the ages after reaching the military age, do not affect the military service. However, among the ones who have not passed through the last call-up and whose ages recorded in the register of births are considered not fitting their personalities, are submitted by the military committees, draft offices and top civil service superior to the Public Prosecutor in order to demand from the competent court the correction of the age and the military service for such persons is processed according to the age considered appropriate by the court. Pursuant to this provision, the recruitment operations take into account, not only the individuals’ ages registered in the birth records, but also the considerations as to whether their appearance match with their known ages. Those individuals whose ages are found not matching with their appearances, are referred to the Offices of the Public Prosecutor for rectification of their ages and the procedures concerning their military service are ceased or continued on the basis of the court decision.

According to Article 27 of the Law No: 1111, “On the day determined, the names in the call-up list belonging to those living in the villages and quarters, where the call-up would be carried out, are read aloud. It is asked to the board of aldermen and their friends whether those whose names read have showed up. Their identity cards are requested and compared with the names in the call-up list. If the names do not match, the reason for this situation is asked and they are legally corrected upon mutual agreement and medical examination is conducted by the board of physicians. Decision is made as to whether they are suitable for the military service or not and whether they fulfill the conditions of the shorter service. The decisions are notified to those who had their call-up completed and recorded as such in their call-up list at the Draft Office and the Registry Office accordingly. This provision provides that due attention is paid to the determination of the actual age and the identity of our citizens during the medical examination process, carried out to ascertain whether or not they are suitable for enrollment.

Article 4 of Law No: 1111 stipulates that individuals of 19 years of age can also be recruited during mobilization or in state of emergency upon the request of the Minister of National Defense, deemed necessary by the Council of Ministers and by the approval of the President.
On the other hand, in Article 5 of the Law No: 1111, the duration of military service in respect of noncommissioned officers and privates in the Land Forces Command, Naval Forces Command, Air Forces Command and the General Command of Gendarmerie, has been specified as 18 months. The Council of Ministers may reduce this period to 15 months or to 12 months in times of peace, taking into account the needs of the armed forces.

The determination of the duration of the compulsory military service starts from the date of induction of the liable from the Draft Office. The excessive term served in the army for more than the period specified, is deducted as twice from the reserve military period. In Turkey, the period of military service is 15 months for noncommissioned officers and privates and 12 months for the reserve officers as of 15.07.2003 pursuant to the decision of the Council of Ministers dated 23.06.2003, No: 2003/5795.

According to Article 49 of the Law No: 1111, “Those individuals, whose call-ups are completed, are transferred on the date of their induction from the Draft Offices by the civil servants or gendarmerie, with their identity card marked and two separate copies of their post bills prepared according to their destination.”

In summary, under the existing legislation it is not possible for persons below the age of 18 to be recruited in the armed forces or involve in an armed conflict as its member. In Turkey, both the compulsory and voluntary military service age is above this limit.

Article 3, Paragraph 1

According to Article 11 of the Law No: 1111, the age of at least 18 must be completed for admission to military service on a voluntary basis. As a matter of fact, voluntary recruitment does not take place in practice due to the sufficiency of resources in respect of the compulsory military service.

Article 3, Paragraphs 2 and 4

In Turkish legislation, no problem exists concerning these provisions.
Article 3, Paragraph 3

Article 3, Paragraph 5

The Military Academies, the Military Medical Academy, and the NCO Corps Profession Colleges, within the organizational charter of Turkish Armed Forces (TAF) are the actual source of training the Officers and NCOs. These higher education institutions offer university education, and the education and instruction level is above the level in the military high schools and their equivalent military schools, where individuals below the age of 18 are educated.

The schools within the structure of and under the supervision of TAF, and which are attended by students who might be regarded as children are the Military High Schools and the NCO Preparatory School. Admission to these secondary education institutions is on a voluntary basis and subject to the consent of families.

Students, who wish to enter the Military High Schools and NCO Preparatory School, take the admission examinations of their own will. Those who succeed the said examinations and enter the quota, are subjected to secondary phase procedures (prior health examinations, tests for physical qualification and interview). The applicants who are successful in this process are then admitted to the schools. A “Liability Document” approved by the notary is requested from the parents for possible compensation claims.

The minimum age of 13 and the maximum age of 16 are required for admission to these secondary level schools within TAF. Students who study at these schools are not, in any way, under any military liability under the military legislation such as the Law on Military Service No: 1111, the Law for Reserve Officers and Reserve Military Servants No: 1076, the Military Penal Law No: 1632 and the Law on the Establishment and Procedures of the Military Courts. They are not entrusted with any military service or duty, therefore, not considered as soldiers. They are not entitled to hold a military status, authority or rank. They do not belong to any military unit other than being a military school student. Therefore, these students cannot be considered as members of the armed forces within the scope of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and its Optional Protocol.
Students, who graduate from the Military High Schools and NCO Preparatory School do not hold any military status. As graduates of high school and its equivalent schools, they are only entitled to become student candidates to the military schools providing higher education. In these schools, basic military training or military skill is not provided. However, in case where they wish to become candidates for professional soldier, education on military courtesy rules, elementary military general culture etc. is provided –provided that regular education and instruction are not hindered– in order to attach them to profession of arms. Accordingly, these schools do not run counter to the contents of Articles 28 and 29 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child.

The educational and instructional activities at such schools are conducted within the scope of TAF Personnel Law, TAF Military High Schools Regulation and TAF NCO Preparatory Schools Regulation. At these schools, educational activities are carried out within the framework of weekly course charts approved by the Instruction and Training Board of the Ministry of National Education. The duration of this education is 4 years (ANNEX–1). Moreover, in these schools, the courses and textbooks, which are approved by the Instruction and Training Board of the Ministry of National Education and included in the curriculum of secondary education institutions, are taught. Within this framework, human rights education is also provided. The courses in these institutions are delivered by army officers and civil teachers, who have received their university education in this field.

The current number of students in military secondary schools is 1817.

In case an actual military requirement or state of emergency arises in times of mobilization or military conflict, military student status of the students being trained at TAF military institutes do not change, and they are not assigned to participate in combat or subsidiary operations.

These students are allowed to leave TAF secondary school institutions at any time, if they so wish. They do not assume any obligation other than matters specified in the letter of undertaking signed by their family concerning tort and law of damages.

The guidance activities in TAF military institutes are duly carried out. The military students may consult with the student adviser at any time and may share their problems. Furthermore, students are closely monitored by the military officers responsible, and may contact the families to discuss the situation of the student, if deemed necessary.
Each student of a military institute within the establishment of and under the supervision of TAF, has the opportunity to communicate his claims, demands or complaints through appropriate application procedures within the scope of the right of petition. This right is guaranteed by both the Constitution and In-Service Law.
