Rise DAAD Research Internships

RISE Germany offers students from North American and British universities the opportunity to complete a summer research internship at top German universities and research institutions. Students are matched with a host university or institute according to their area of interest (biology, chemistry, physics, earth sciences, engineering, or a closely related field). Host universities and institutes provide housing assistance and match students with Ph.D. student mentors.

DAAD provides students a monthly stipend for three months to help cover living expenses.

German language requirements depend on the nature of the internship. Some require at least an intermediate level of German language skills while others require none at all.

Eligibility criteria

You have to be:

- Currently enrolled at a university/college in the United States, Canada or the UK as a full-time student in the field of biology, chemistry, physics, earth sciences or engineering (or a closely related field)
- An undergraduate who will have completed at least two years of a degree programme by the time of the internship placement
- Prove that you will maintain undergraduate status after the internship has taken place

German language skills are not required for most positions but would be helpful to manage everyday life outside of the laboratory. The working language will generally be English.
