

How one housing association is tackling crime and anti-social behaviour.

Centre for Criminology and Department of Sociology

Managing crime and anti-social behaviour in residential areas is a challenge for all housing associations. How do they reduce and manage it effectively? What affect does it have on communities?

Poplar Housing and Regeneration Community Association (HARCA) have developed an innovative, early-intervention approach to do just this. This successful method has now been recognised internationally as best-practice, and HARCA are coming to Essex to talk about their approach.

This seminar will be of interest to students intending to work in the public sector and to practitioners in housing, local government and criminal justice, as well as the general public.

The speakers

Andrea Baker, Director of Housing, and Jamie Lock, Assistant Director of Anti-Social Behaviour and Safeguarding, have a combined total of 50 years in housing management and between them have worked for HARCA for almost 20 years.

- Date: Tuesday 20 October 2015
- Time: 6pm
- Venue: Lecture Theatre Building 5

Book your place

This lecture is open to all. If you'd like to attend, book your place now. If you have any questions, contact c4crim@essex.ac.uk.