Projects and Opportunities

---

ESTRO – Essex Student Research Online

is an online multi-disciplinary, peer-reviewed academic journal, run by and for University of Essex students. It publishes high-quality undergraduate and postgraduate writing, is issued annually in June and accepts submissions relating to any subject area studied within the university.

Information for Undergraduates

---

Get the skills you need to succeed in your studies

---

The Talent Development Centre is here to support you with the skills you need for undergraduate study at the University of Essex, no matter what level you are at or the subject you study.

These are the places you might meet us in your time at the University.

1:1 Advising

---

Get one to one support with any aspect of academic study, maths, statistics or assignment writing from our team of expert advisers.

To book a half hour appointment, visit the TDC Helpdesk in the Silberrad Centre.

Workshops

---

Throughout the year we offer a range of open access workshops. Whether you need advice on referencing, structuring an essay, maths and statistics or managing your time, we can help.

Visit the TDC Helpdesk in the Silberrad Centre to find out the full range of sessions available

Modules & Classes

---

The TDC also runs degree credit modules for students wanting to improve their writing and research skills, and delivers academic skills classes for departments across the university as part of individual degree programmes.

Ask your department for more information.

English Language Support

---

Academic English classes are available throughout the year to support international students with academic and language skills. As well as a full range of optional attendance sessions, we also offer a range of subject-specific additional credit modules and a dedicated PhD Language support course.

Visit the TDC Helpdesk in the Silberrad Centre or talk to your department for details.
